Why is cultural education important?

The Cultural Learning Alliance's 2017 Imagine Nation report on the impact of cultural education showed:

- participation in structured arts activities can increase cognitive abilities by 17%
- learning through arts and culture can improve attainment in Maths and English
- students from low-income families who take part in arts activities at school are three times more likely to get a degree

The Centre for Social Justice's 2023 Two Nations report argues that improved access to extra-curricular activities (including arts enrichment) could be part of the solution to the current attendance crisis.

This investment provides access to a wealth of CPD benefits including:

Our work with the NGA

The Arts Council has a strong partnership with the National Governance Association and has developed an e-learning module for governors and trustees about the value and impact of arts and cultural education, and how to embed across the organisation.

The module, available to NGA members, enables governors and trustees to develop their understanding of what arts and cultural education means and how it can be used for school improvement and enhancing the school curriculum.

Artsmark encourages governors and trustees to take the module and learn more about the value of cultural education.
